Class Poem—"Meditation"

"Oh, memories, return and still be ours
As sunshine and rain return to the flowers.
Like the singing birds their visits pay,
Like the parting sunbeams silent delay.
Oft have we paused in our journey through
To study, to reason and review
Oft have we dreamed of this happy day
When work being over we turn to play.
In this our journey in a world of care
We have looked upon sorrow—'tis always there.
Still we silently hoped to gain renown
And these short hours with happiness crown.
Oh! beautiful memories of pleasure and ease,
Dreams of youth when all work and please.
Oft have we lingered and strayed in the dawn—
Oh beautiful, happy days forever, ever gone.
To the Goddess of Learning 'tis only suffice,
We have made only an humble sacrifice.
May friendship and love forever live
Like the thanks to the Muses now we give.
Dear Alma Mater, creation of triumphant mind,
May peace and happiness forever be thine.
In your hidden course may no storms annoy—
Journey on through the waves of successful joy.
On through thy journey over the restless sea,
Our hearts and our prayers shall be with thee.
Let your power come only from God above,
May your mission be always that of love."

CLASS SONG

Words & Music by Ruby Stapleton

Deeds we have done are writ-ten, Whether great or small .. All these deeds we leave you as a to.. Ken, Our class to re-call, Faithful and ever wor---thy of you, we will be, Our glad High School days we'll have in mem---o----ry .....
Chorus
Knoxville High. White and Blue, Our hearts are full of love for you, No matter where we chance to stray, The class of Twentycres

Six will say we spent our very happiest days 'neath White rit
a Tempo
and Blue

VERSE TWO

Although we may have faltered
Clearly now we see
That the errors of life may be altered
By lessons learned from thee;
Standards of Faith and Duty
In our hearts we will fix,
That you may e'er pride the Class
Of Twenty-Six.

Chorus

VERSE THREE

We'll ne'er forget each other;
Our dear school we'll uphold,
And hoist on high the banner
Our own "Blue and Gold";
We'll hope of future meetings
'Neath the white and the blue,
And now our dear Knoxville High,
We'll say, "Adieu."

Chorus

History of the Class of '26

We entered Knoxville High School probably the freshest class of Freshmen that ever enrolled. But we graduate a most sophisticated and dignified class. We were happy even if we did show our greenness by buying lunch room permits. But under the kind guidance of the seniors, (Class of '23), we soon learned our places. Some staggered into the pitfalls and snares of Latin and Algebra and fell, but others took their places so that we are now the largest class that ever graduated from Knoxville High School.

During our Sophomore and Junior years, we became interested in some organization or club in school, and long lists of our names began to appear in the Honor Rolls. While some took to the intellectual side of school, others represented our class in all branches of athletics on championship teams and wore that coveted "K."

We elected a group of directors who were full of "pep" and started our class out right with that "fighting Blue and White Spirit." The Senior Vaudeville was the first entertainment of its kind to be put on in the High School, and it met with such a great success that there were many requests that it be repeated. Our Battalion was the Honor Battalion of the Fourth Corps Area, our Band went to Florida to boost the Smoky Mountain National Park, and all the different branches of athletics have won National reputation, especially the Track and Field Team. These organizations are largely composed of members of the Class of '26. We also helped raise a large sum of money for the Smoky Mountain National Park. Our Class has made a very high scholastic record, showing the character of its members.

We, the Class of '26, are proud of our record and believe that it will be a long time before any class lives up to the high standard set by us. As we look back on our four long years of joy and sorrow, work and play, we graduate with the feeling that we will always love and cherish the memory of our high school days.

Last Will and Testament

We, the graduating class of Knoxville High School of the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six, being of sound mind, make this, our last will and testament, hereby annulling all previous documents made by us.

We, the Senior Class, bequeath the fun of acting dignified to our successors, the Juniors.

We, the everlasting gum chewers of the Senior Class, leave our chews, parked in various and sundry places, to Roy Conner and his heirs.

I, James Smith, leave my carload of empty containers of various brands of hair dressing to any Junior who will pay the freight, preferably, Bruce Foster.

I, Betty Lowe, leave my record of having the most crushes to Dot Stair.

I, Wilford Helsley, leave my position as class humorist to any Junior capable of holding the job. Also my copies of the Hot Dog and College Humor.

I, Frances Vineyard, leave my job as official heartbreaker to Kathleen Whittaker.

I, Roscoe Brumback, bequeath my position as official shiek to any Junior capable of keeping his hair back without the use of grease, preferably to Mims Thompson.

I, Kenneth Scott, leave my record of being the heavyweight of the class to "Wee Willie" Sample, along with my life long motto, "Be broad in all things."

I, Trent Bible, bequeath the honor of being the lankiest Senior, to Harry Smalley.

I, Albert Bacon, leave a picture of myself to be hung in the Hall of Fame.

I, James Gillenwaters, leave my pound of nucoa to any Junior whose brain requires external feeding.

I, Russell Gibbs, leave my inspiration as best dramatist to Ted Byer.

I, Floyd Chandler, leave a framed record of my involuntary visits home during school hours to Mrs. Morrell to use as an example to Freshmen.

I, Claude Dungan, bequeath my megaphone to any contortionist who is able to use it.

I, Luther Wright, bequeath my ton of love letters, written to three certain girls, to the janitors to use in firing the furnaces.

We, the members of the Senior Class, bequeath a leather bound volume of the biography of Lord Stanley, M.P., to Mr. Northcutt.

We, the undersigned, set our hand and seal in witness hereof, this twenty-seventh day of May, nineteen hundred and twenty-six.

The Senior Year

The melancholy days have come
Bells toll both far and near,
As the Junior gathers up his books
To enter his Senior Year.

'Tis well he cannot look ahead
And see what lies before,
Else his heart would quake with awful dread
As he passed within the door.

There are problems that measure a mile in length,
And solutions in Chemistry
He'll find it will take a lot of his strength
If he gains their mastery.

And English begins 'way back with the flood,
From Chaucer to Shelley and Keats;
When he's read Browning and Kipling he'll think
He's accomplished some wonderful feats.

He'll say, when he's studied some Spanish or French,
That he's wise as the sages of yore,
But his pride will receive a terrible wrench
When it has to be done o'er and o'er.

The mountain of learning can only be gained
By removing each stone from the way,
And nothing's of use unless it's retained—
For Rome was not built in a day.

An Irish Hero

LUCILE WEISGERBER

In a little village on the Shannon dwelt the O'Brians. Their history had been one of a fighting people and their deeds had often been mentioned among the long ago heroes of old Erin. But now there were only two of them—a mother and her little son, Paul, who dwelt in a gray cottage beside the Shannon. Here they spent their lives among the simple folk of this little village. But they still reverenced the names of departed heroes, as did all the village, and often when dusk had come and the candles were shining from the little cottage, the mother would call her little son to her and tell him of his fighting ancestors. This seemed to thrill Paul, and although he was only a small child, he would sit for hours when all was dark, save for the stars, and wonder if he would ever have the opportunity to keep up that tradition of his ancestors.

Thus the time passed on and all was peaceful. This little village was happy, as was all the world. People were enjoying the bliss of well contented lives. But this was not to last. There was coming a time when this happiness would be turned into tears. That time was not far off!

A few years passed swiftly by and a dark cloud seemed to be shadowing the earth. People were growing restless. Suddenly the dark cloud burst forth. It was war! Nation after nation entered into the conflict. When Great Britain entered, she needs must have men. She sounded her call, first, to the sturdy sons of England, next, to the Highland Lads of Scotland, and last, to the fighting sons of old Erin. That call came to the little village and Paul O'Brian answered. He knew what it meant, so he said goodbye to his mother and the little village on the Shannon.

After several months training, he was sent to France, the battleground of the world. Having spent several weeks in training in France, his company was ordered to the front. Paul and his comrades were wild with joy. Immediately Paul found himself facing the enemy. This was indeed war. As the battle began, he and his comrades rushed forth with zeal. Many were wounded and killed. Then they began to falter, but Paul O'Brian, encouraged by the spirit of the French who were fighting next to the Irish, kept on fighting. His valor seemed to put a new spirit in his comrades, and they rushed madly on. In a long and hotly contested battle, they were victorious, but it was all due to the courage and tenacity of this son from old Erin. This was not the only battle, but in many, the day was won by the dauntless spirit of Paul O'Brian. This was real joy to him, for was he not keeping up that tradition of his ancestors?

After several days rest Paul and his comrades were again ordered to the front, but this time his joy was turned into sorrow, for his mother, the dearest friend on earth, had died. But now she would be his guiding star. When he reached the front the battle was raging. He rushed recklessly into the thickest of it. What cared he for living? All was dark before him. He fell, seriously wounded but he did not seem to feel the pain. It was getting quite dark and the din of battle had ceased. All was quiet save for the groans of his wounded and dying companions. As he lay there, the stars began to peep forth one by one, but not with the brightness that they used to shine over the little village on the Shannon. In the dark, among the wounded, he beheld a vision of the little cottage on the Shannon, with his mother watching at the door for his return. But this vision quickly vanished—he knew this could never be.

Darkness passed on and dawn began to break. Then he remembered. He placed his hand in the pocket of his torn uniform and lifted out a small box containing a bit of green. He placed it on his uniform, for this was the dawning of "Saint Patrick's Day." Then his eyes put on a brighter look, for it was the little three-leafed-shamrock, the last thing his mother had given him before his departure for France.

Day dawned more clearly and the stretcher-bearers came and gathered in the wounded and dying. Many of these that were carried to the hospital died that day. Among that number was Paul O'Brian. Thus, wearing the green, he died, and according to his request his body was carried back to Ireland and laid beside that of his mother on the banks of the peaceful Shannon, to await the dawning of a better day. But his name and deeds were not buried there, for his glory is ever an inspiration to the fighting sons of old Erin.

Dreams

Just to be happy, just to be free,
Just to be living is pleasure to me;
To be in the woods, where nature holds sway,
Or to be with my books on a rainy day;
Just to be walking o'er meadow and lea,
Where nature is calling from bush and from tree;
Just to be swimming in a clear, cool stream
Where fishes and shells and such things dream;
Just to be out where all is still
God's power gleams o'er valley and hill;
Just to read, to study, and to dream
Of things to come, or that might have been,
Just to build castles and tear them down;
Such castles are built the world around;
Just to hear music, rich, full, and inspiring
Or the creatures of nature singing and sighing;
Just to be happy, just to be free,
Just to be living is pleasure to me.

The Confidence Cure

HEYWARD MOORE

The sun, which had been shining down on the field when the game began, was now a red ball in the west. The windows in old Maine Tower had caught the radiance of the sun and now gave the building the appearance of a flaming torch. The tower was silhouetted against a background of rosy tipped clouds, deeply lined with jagged streaks of gold.

Unheading the beauties of such a scene, however, the people who packed the stands of Winston High's athletic field kept their eyes intent upon twenty-two boys, eleven of whom represented Winston High, and carried the colors, blue and white, on their mud bespattered jersies. The other eleven composed the team from Bailey High School.

It was almost the last game of the season, and so far Winston High was on the worst end of a nothing to nothing score. Doggedly fighting for every inch of ground, the Winston boys made their last stand; for under the shadow of their own goal posts defeat stared them in the face. Worn out by a team now confident of victory, they braced themselves to prevent a first down there on their own seven yard line. First down here meant defeat, and fourth down meant renewed hope.

The great stands were silent as Ralston, the Bailey quarterback, called his signals in a voice now grown hoarse: 12-10-44—hep, then, 1-9-6—the ball snapped back to the eager hands of big Jim Douval, and the crucial play was in motion. But it so happened that the ball was muddy and the big half's hands were too eager, and he fumbled just as Russ Martin, Winston quarterback, was rounding the end of the struggling lines. He got a glimpse of the ball bounding toward him. Stooping low he picked up the ball and began a spectacular sprint.

How he got there he does not know yet, but it seemed as if he would never make it. There were no white lines. They had been erased by the morning rain. Nevertheless he sped on, and his flying feet pulled in yard after yard.

It remained only for Winston to kick off and the game was over.

Now Russell Martin was quite an unobtrusive boy, who had come to his senior year without any spectacular occurrence disturbing the smooth flow of his life. He did not dance, not because he did not want to, but because he did not know how, and so he was hopelessly out of the social life of the school.

Therefore his popularity in the next few days before the Lemoyne game, which was one of the big games of the season, would have turned anyone's head. So, sorry to relate, as Russ was just an ordinary boy, his head responded to the flattery showered on him from all sides. He was even convinced that he had won the game.

Ted Howard, head mentor for Winston's athletic teams, was the first to perceive the change, and was not at all surprised when he noticed that Russ was not snapping into practice as usual. It was plain to the coach what had happened. Being called a hero had turned Martin's head.

The night before the big game with Lemoyne, Russ did not show up at the training table. At the end of the meal, the coach arose to speak.

"Boys", he began, "we face the biggest game of the season tomorrow. All of you, no doubt, are thinking only of the Thanksgiving game with Castle Heights Academy, but let me tell you now, Lemoyne is out for blood. They think you are over confident because you have come through with a clean slate. If you boys get out there with the old pep and catch them napping, you are bound to win the game. Remember this, tomorrow's game means the championship just as much as the Thanksgiving game, for if you lose tomorrow, you have lost the championship.

"And another thing, one of your number has openly showed himself to be over confident, otherwise he would be here tonight and would not be neglecting any chance of putting himself in the best of condition. Don't worry about him. Tomorrow's game will cure him of that. Turn in at nine o'clock and get a good rest. That's all boys. Goodnight."

It was ideal football weather the next day. The air was crisp, and the sun shone brightly. A frost had been on the ground that morning. At last the time rolled around, and both teams seemed to be in the pink of condition as they trotted out on the field.

To a casual observer, everything seemed to be all right when the teams formed for the kick off with Lemoyne receiving, but a cry soon spread through the rooter's section of the stands. Where was Martin? What had happened?

The rumor that Russ was not in the starting line-up proved to be true. It had happened quickly. The coach had only said, "Graves, you will start at quarter, that will be the only change."

And so Russ took his seat on the bench and on the bench he remained. And it did not take him long to realize that the team could get along without him, for they won by a twelve to nothing score.

After the game was over, Coach Howard beckoned Russ to him. "Well, the punishment is over old man," he said, "Do you think you can help your team win from Castle Heights next week?"

"Don't you worry about that," answered Russ, "and Coach—I'll see you at supper tonight."

Forgiveness

Forgive, though your proud heart rebels
And thoughts of wrong your bosom swells.
Though wronged you can still live
And freely, graciously forgive.
Forgive, prove not rebellious still;
Control your anger, curb your will.
No thought of vengeance should there be;
Forgiveness should be full and free.

God Is Everywhere

God reigns in the midst of the thunder clouds.
He comes in the pattering rain.
He stays in the heart of each little flower;
He lives in each seed of grain.
God kneels by the side of each new made grave;
He roars in the water fall.
He is even found in the souls of men
Watching and guiding them all.

A Bigger and Better Knoxville

After many hours of work and thought, we, the "Voice" Staff of '26, present this twenty-eighth edition of our High School Annual. Into this book we have put our deepest thought, our most brilliant ideas, our most earnest work, and our sincere desire for its success. As to the measure of its success, our readers shall judge. We have no apology; may this, "The Voice" of '26, stand or fall on its merits alone.

It seems that plans for some of the long-needed improvements are well under way and the work will be completed in the near future. Many new and larger school buildings, a large gymnasium, and an adequate athletic field are among the improvements already planned. This gymnasium will be of regulation size, and having a sufficient seating capacity, it will greatly aid the basketball teams, as well as all girls' indoor sports. The Board of Education has seen fit to buy a large tract of ground upon which it will construct a new modern Junior High School, and an athletic field worthy of the type of athletic teams which our school puts out.

The business men of the city have shown the students the great advantages of having a national park near our city. The financial and other advantages of this park should interest us, the future business men, even more than these men who are advocating the park, for the unequaled splendor and beauty of these great mountains will be preserved for us and this newly-discovered grandeur will be made famous throughout the world. Knoxville will be within a few miles of the heart of this great park and would necessarily reap a large share of the benefits. We should be grateful to the men who, in being interested in the Great Smoky Mountain National Park, are interested in our future.

With the prospects of a great future for our city it behooves us as its future citizens to do everything in our power to promote its welfare. Let us develop among ourselves a type of citizenship that will rise above all jealousies and prejudices and cause us to work together for a common good. "United we stand, divided we fall." So let's go for a bigger and better Knoxville.

Military

Major Harry Walter Stephenson

Major Stephenson was born in Nebraska and appointed to the United States Naval Academy while attending Lincoln High School. He graduated from the Naval Academy in 1909 and transferred to the Army as a Lieutenant of Coast Artillery. While at the Academy he was a member of several athletic teams and won the Lightweight Boxing Championship, held the academy record in the Pole Vault and was Captain and shooting member of the Naval Academy Rifle Team in the National Matches of 1908.

Major Stephenson went overseas in command of a Battalion of heavy artillery and was promoted to the grade of Lieutenant Colonel while in France. Later he was in command of Camp Port Foye, Brest; a member of the Haskell Mission to Armenia during the winter of 1919-1920; and Executive Officer of the American Base, Antwerp, during the Olympic Games of 1920.

This is the Major's third year at the High School and it is through his efforts that we were able to again have the distinction of being the Honor High School of the Fourth Corps Area. The Major is an ardent supporter of all the High School athletics, and encourages it among the companies.

CADET OFFICERS CLUB

BAND

The United States Reserve Officers Training Corps

The R. O. T. C. is now an established institution in the Knoxville High School. It was organized in the Knoxville High School in the fall of 1919 by Major Howell M. Estes, P.M.S. & T. After four years of successful and useful service as commandant, Major Estes was relieved by Major Harry W. Stephenson who assumed duties at the beginning of the school year 1923. Major Stephenson has been with us three years, and we hope he will not be transferred when he has completed his four years.

The R. O. T. C. in the public school is now considered as an indispensable aid to the welfare of the nation. It develops brain as well as brawn. It teaches the cadets military science and tactics combined with discipline, self-control and leadership. It should be the duty of every cadet officer to set an example of patriotism, loyalty and honor, before his men that they might grow up to be better citizens of the United States, and better fitted to its needs.

The crowning event and the climax of the well filled military year is the annual Demonstration Day Ceremony. This is held during the last month of the school at Caswell Park Parade Grounds. It is here amid the cheers of hundreds of onlookers and supporters, that the Prize Company is selected by a group of representatives from the American Legion Post No. 2. The individuals of the winning company are presented with blue ribbons, the captain with a gold medal, and the company as a whole with a banner bearing the inscription: "Knoxville High School's Prize Company." The Flag was won again last year by "A" Company, making two years in succession. The officers of the company were: James G. Johnston, captain; Edgar Bennett, 1st lieutenant; Reed Sterchi, 2nd lieutenant; Emerson Cunningham, 2nd lieutenant; and Edward Gillenwaters, 2nd lieutenant.

The Knoxville High School Battalion has participated in several parades and reviews this year, the first of which was the Armistice Day Parade.

The R. O. T. C. Band, one of the largest and best in the South, was selected to go on the Booster trip to Florida in recognition of their ability. Mr. Crouch is one of the best band instructors in the South and the band owes most of its credit to him for their ability to play as they do.

Junior Class Play

"Nothing But the Truth," a farce in three acts, was presented by the Junior Class and was received enthusiastically. Each act is filled with humorous situations. The plot centers around a bet made by Bob Bennett, the hero, with three of his friends, E. M. Raulston, Dick Donnelly, and Clarence Van Dusen, that he could tell the absolute truth for twenty-four hours.

Of course Bob finally wins the bet, but first, through his inability to lie, he almost brings about a separation between Mr. and Mrs. Raulston, and nearly loses his sweetheart, the bet, and all his friends.

The cast: Robert Bennett, Bruce Foster; E. M. Raulston, Ted Byer; Richard Donnelly, John Hightower; Bishop Doran, Sherwood Johnston; Gwendolyn Raulston, Kathleen Whittaker; Mrs. Raulston, Ruth Halyburton; Ethyl Clark, Elizabeth Strayer; Mable Jackson, Jane Douglas; Sable Jackson, Lucile Reagan; Martha, the maid, Margaret Thornton.

Operetta

"The Bells of Beaujolais," an operetta in two acts, was presented March 26, 1926, both afternoon and night. Parts were taken by the members of the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs, the leading parts being played by Betty Lowe, Greta Biddle, Betty Ambrose, Marie Hackney, Clara Gilliam, Frances Elmore, Sara Meek, Hugh Smith, Lawrence Dysart, Thomas Parham, Albert Ross, Wilford Helsley, Walter Bales, and James Pitts.

Societies

HONOR SOCIETY

The National Honor Society

The Knoxville High School Chapter of the National Honor Society is one of about one hundred and fifty organizations of this type in the United States, and one of three in the State of Tennessee.

Membership in this society is based on scholarship, service, leadership, and character. Only students in the Junior and Senior Classes are eligible for membership, and are admitted by the vote of the Honor Society Council composed of Mr. W. E. Evans, Mrs. Darnall, Miss Evans, Miss Broady, and Mr. Lowery. Mrs. Darnall is the faculty sponsor of the organization.

A get-together hike was made last Fall, to which not only the active organization, but all Alumni members were invited. On this occasion the nucleus of the Alumni Chapter was formed.

The Honor Society was in charge of one of the Lower Class Chapel exercises in the month of February. At this time, the officers and members were introduced to the school, and an inspiring talk was made by Bishop Wilber Thirkield, of the Chattanooga District of the Methodist Church.

The Honor Society offers each year rewards for the highest scholarships made by two Seniors, during their high school course. These are presented at Commencement. Officers of the National Honor Society for the terms 1925-1926 are:

The Girl Reserves

The Girl Reserves have had a very successful year. By sponsoring rummage and pastry sales, they earned enough money to send four delegates to the Girl Reserve Conference at Brenard, North Carolina. "The Faculty Frolic," given to entertain the faculty members, was a huge success.

The Hi-Y Club

The Knoxville High School Hi-Y Club, under the supervision of Mr. Marshall Wilson, has enjoyed a most successful year. Some of the most important incidents were: The Initiation ceremony; The Self Analysis program carried on by Mr. Napier, Boys' Secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; and the club play which was aided by the "Girl Reserve Club."

The Hi-Y Club is the only religious organization for boys in the school. The purpose of the club is "To create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian Character." Bible discussion among the boys has been one of the greatest achievements of this year's work. Many distinguished speakers have visited the club and made excellent talks. The club boasted of one of the largest memberships in its history this year, which was guided by the following officers:

The French Club

The Knoxville High School French Club, with fifty members enrolled, has had a very successful year. Due to the lack of last year's records the Club has been unable to procure pins but are making every attempt to do so. Five interesting meetings have been held and there has been a large attendance at all.

THE OFFICERS ARE:

ELEANOR HACKER - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - President
DAVID MERIWETHER - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - Vice-President
ELIZABETH STRAYER - - - - - - - - - - - - Secretary-Treasurer

The Spanish Club

The "Lope de Vega Club" is a society in which literary attainment is striven for, hence, the name of one of the greatest writers in all literature was chosen. The motto of the club is, "A better understanding of Spanish ideals." The ritual and pledge, penned by Mr. Herman, are a portrayal of our aims.

The officers who have endeavored to advance the club are:

JAMES SMITH - President
RAYMOND STRIPLING - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - Vice-President
CATHERINE LLOYD - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - Secretary
THOMAS BROWN - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - Treasurer

MR. HERMAN
is faculty adviser

The past year has been a huge success and one of excellent achievements.

The Latin Club

The Latin Club was reorganized at the beginning of the Fall term by the students of the Cicero classes in Knoxville High School.

OFFICERS OF THE CLUB ARE:

CLARA JEAN BEAMAN - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - President
THOMAS PARHAM - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - Vice-President
KATHERINE MCDONALD - - - - - - - - - - Secretary-Treasurer

MISS CLARA SHERWOOD
is the faculty adviser of the club

The Commercial Club

The Commercial Club of the Knoxville High School is composed, as the name indicates, of the students of the Commercial Department of the school.

THIS YEAR'S OFFICERS ARE:

HARRY PAYLOR - President
MARGARET CHILDS - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - Vice-President
RALPH WILDER - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - Secretary
CATHERINE HEINS - - - - - - - - - - - - Treasurer
JUANITA BALL - - - - - - - - - - Club Reporter

The club emblem is a diamond-shaped silver pin, with green enamel inset, bearing the initial letters of the club name, "Knoxville High Commercial Club," in the four corners of the pin. The club colors are green and white.

The meetings of the club have been especially interesting this year. One of the most helpful to the students was the January meeting, when Mr. Walter Bonham of the C. M. McClung Company, talked to the members on the subject, "What a Business Man Expects of His Employees." A number of other business men were heard by the club at various meetings, and several recreational and social meetings were also enjoyed.

MISS MARY ELLEN CHAMPE
is the faculty adviser

The Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club of the Knoxville High School held its first meeting on the thirteenth of September when new officers were installed. This club, with the aid of the Art Department and the Public Speaking Classes, successfully presented two programs in Chapel; one as the annual Thanksgiving tableau, and the other in the regular Christmas Chapels. On February twenty-sixth the club presented "Mice and Men", as their annual play.

The aim of this well known group is to study the modern side of the "Little Theatre" movement as applied to High School Dramatics. Miss Million is the competent faculty adviser and director of this organization.

THE OFFICERS ARE:

Raymond Stripling - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - President
Emily Simpson - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - Vice-President

Musical Organizations

The Chorus, under the direction of Mr. Parker, has had an unusually successful year. Its greatest achievement was the presentation of "The Bells of Beaujolais," an operetta in two acts. The Chorus is made up of the Boys' Glee Club, directed by Mr. Parker, and the Girls' Glee club, directed by Miss Minnie Stensland.

The Orchestra is larger than ever before and the music is of the very best quality. Its success is largely due to the work of Dr. Chas. A. Garratt, director.

The Blue and White

The Blue and White, High School weekly paper, has shown a marked improvement this year, the fourth year of its existence in Knoxville High. The Blue and White took the place of the old Voice, which was published either monthly or quarterly. Since the Blue and White made its appearance, the weekly sheet has been rapidly growing and improving.

C. V. Hackney was the first Faculty Supervisor, and has continued in that capacity during the entire time of the paper's existence. Due to his faithful services and untiring efforts, the paper has been gaining recognition, where older papers have failed to show up. The paper started the fourth year of its existence with very few veteran members back to fill the vacancies.

A news-writing class was organized under the supervision of Mr. Hackney. This was the first class of its kind to be organized in the high school. Staff members and a few students, who were recommended by the English teachers, composed the class. In a few weeks, the members of the class who seemed the most promising, were annexed to the staff. It was in this way that the vacancies were filled.

Another accomplishment of the Blue and White was the sending of delegates to two press conventions. The Business Manager and Editor-in-Chief attended the Sixth Annual Central Interscholastic Press Association Convention, held at Madison, Wisconsin, November 27th and 28th. The Staff Secretary and Editor-in-Chief attended the Second Annual Columbia Scholastic Press Association Convention, held in New York, March 12th and 13th. It was at the convention at Madison, that the Editor won first prize for the best report of the convention.

Edward Hunt, Business Manager, withdrew from competition for the trophy offered by the Herf-Jones Company of Indianapolis, for the member of the business staff who secured the most advertising. His withdrawal came as a surprise to the staff, as he had secured practically enough advertising to assure him of winning the trophy. Hunt showed a great spirit in withdrawing from the contest, and giving someone else a chance of winning the cup. Emily Simpson won the trophy last year.

The best organization ever, has been perfected in this year's staff. The work has been more evenly distributed, and everyone has cooperated toward making the paper better than it has formerly been.

A second news-writing class has been organized this term, and it is from the ranks of these two classes that next year's staff will largely be drafted. Many of the veteran members leave this year, and many positions will be open for competition. Emily Simpson, Advertising Manager, completes her fourth year on the staff, having been connected with the Blue and White since its organization in 1922.

With the advance training in the news-writing class and a few veteran members returning, the prospects are bright for a splendid staff next year.

One of the greatest teams that ever represented the "Blue and White" was turned out this year under the able tutelage of Coach Johnny "Red" Floyd. By winning from all outstanding teams of East Tennessee, the Trojans were undisputed champions of this section.

The Trojans opened their season on September 26th by defeating the Jefferson City High School eleven by a score of 39 to 0. On the following Friday the Maryville Poly boys were forced to accept the short end of a 34 to 0 score. The next game was not such an easy affair however. Kingsport had one of the best teams seen here this year and held a six point lead over the Trojans until the third quarter when "Lobby" Julian received a ten yard pass from Burl Foust and ran the remaining ten yards to score the tying points. Then "Sheeney" White placed a perfect dropkick through the uprights for the extra point to win 7 to 6.

The next week the Trojans stopped the winning streak of the Bradley County Bears, at Cleveland, by the score of 12 to 0. Then came the Cadets from T. M. I. They fought gamely and held the boys in Blue scoreless during the first half, only to have them return in the second half and administer a stinging 27 to 0 defeat.

Baylor, boasting an undefeated team and an uncrossed goal line, was the next to invade Caswell Park. But the Trojans, determined to uphold the standard set by last year's team, crossed their goal in the first half when Burl "Levi" Foust plunged over from the two yard line. Later Fred McTeer received a short punt and returned it for a touch down, making the final score 13 to 0.

City High of Chattanooga surprised every one by holding the Trojans to a 6 to 0 win.

McCallie threw a scare into the camp when they led the Trojans through three full quarters of the game. Clyde Butler then sprang into the limelight when he snagged a difficult pass thrown by Bill Poe, and ran 25 yards for a thrilling touch down, High School thereby winning 6 to 2.

The climax of a wonderful season came, however, when the Trojans met the Bobcats of Central High School. Neither team had been defeated so this was the deciding game for the East Tennessee championship. Central was favored to win easily. One of the greatest crowds that ever witnessed a prep school classic in Knoxville was present. The Trojans played clean, hard, football, and splashed through the mud and rain to an impressive 12 to 0 victory. Central fought hard but High School was right. The Trojans had reached their peak, and every man, determined to wipe out the stain of last year's defeat, covered himself and his school with glory.

The only defeat of the year was suffered at the hands of the powerful M. B. A. machine, on Dudley Field at Nashville, in a post season game. The Trojans fought hard but were completely outclassed and were defeated by the large score of 89 to 0.

The basketball team this year was not up to the high standard of the other teams. This was due to the fact that only two letter men returned from last year's team, and the team was made up of inexperienced men. Fourteen games were won and seven lost. The Trojans looked good when they eliminated the strong Daisy five in the East Tennessee tournament. However, on the following night they were defeated by Everett High. Down at Nashville in the State Tournament the boys in blue defeated Morgan, but were later eliminated by M. B. A., whose team later won the state championship.

By winning from such teams as Bradley, T. M. I. and Baylor, and, by losing only two games during the entire season, the Trojans were accorded the state championship. With all but three of this championship team back, the outlook is promising for another year of triumphs for the Trojans.

RECORD FOR 1925

The track season for '25 was a decided success. Dual meets were won from Madisonville and T. M. I. In the meet sponsored by the University of Tennessee the Trojans captured third place. In the same meet the relay team defeated the crack Baylor team, thereby winning for the second straight year the mile relay championship. The greatest feat of the season came when five men, representing our school, took ninth place in the National meet held at Chicago.

New records for the school were established during the season. The most important of these were Green's record of four minutes and thirty-four seconds for the mile, and Benton's record breaking heave of the javelin of one hundred and fifty-three feet.

Prospects are very good for another successful year on the cinder path, despite the loss of Green and Long. Several new men are showing up well in early spring training and we are looking forward to another great year in this branch of sport.

Girls' Basketball was resumed this year with Miss Mary House as coach. As this was the first time in two years that the girls have had a basketball team, inexperience was the greatest handicap. Captain Mabry was the stellar performer for the year, scoring one hundred and four points.

The team as a whole played well and should be in the championship class next year, as only one who made a letter will be lost by graduation.

Marion Spears:—"Just fine, thanks."
Jerome:—"Oh, have you seen her?"

Mr. Northcutt:—" . . . . . and the farmer is the only producer who makes his living directly from the soil."
Voice from rear:—"How about the laundress?"

We editors may tug and toil,
'Till our finger tips are sore,
But some poor fish is sure to say,
"I've heard that joke before."

Bill Blackwell:—"Who gave you the black eye?"
Eugene J:—"Nobody gave it to me; I had to fight for it."

Margaret Childs:—"What's the matter with this coffee? It looks like mud."
Waiter:—"Yes; it was ground this morning."

'NUF CED

Little words of wisdom,
Little words of bluff
Make the teachers tell us,
"Sit down, that's enough."

Helen P.:—"I hear Joe likes only brunettes."
Mae Harvey:—"So they say. I'm dyeing to meet him."

Albert Bacon (to girl on phone):—"Now, I'll get another girl and you get another good looking fellow."

A messenger had just returned with news that Birnim Wood was marching toward Dunsiname when one of Macbeth's aides turned to him and said: "Cheese it! The Copse!"

Betty Ambrose didn't know she was such a swell girl 'till she had the mumps.

Jokes

A college professor is one who can tell all about the fifth Egyptian Dynasty, but can't remember where he left his umbrella."

Complaining tenant:—".... and besides, the rooms are very damp."
Landlord:—"That's because there's so much due on them."

Mrs. Morrell:—"How many times must I tell you not to be late to school?"
Carol Christenbery:—"Only once a day, ma'am."

Trent Bible:—"Do you save any of your salary?"
Tom Bayless:—"Yes, but I don't lend money to anybody."

Mr. Northcutt:—"Frank, what is the difference between direct and indirect taxes?"
Frank Groves:—"Why the difference between my sister asking me for money and going through my pockets while I'm asleep."

Marie Hackney:—"I wish I could revise the alphabet."
Russell G:—"Why?"
Marie:—"I'd put U and I closer together."

Jim Payne:—"Watch out! Don't strike a match on the gas tank."
Byron H.:—"It's all right. This is a safety match."

Elizabeth Johnston:—"Do you play golf?"
Chub S.:—"Do I? Why, I played the club course once in 85."
Elizabeth:—"Prevaricator! It wasn't built until '16."

Heard the fourth period:—: Mr. Foster:—"The next person that says 'huh' will be sent from the room."
Chorus:—"Huh?"

"I got 50 on my intelligence test."
"That makes you a half wit."
